OUR WATER SYSTEM

Brief History of Its Development—The Verdugo Canon Water Co.—What Water Stock Represents, etc.—Present Conditions

The water question is of such vital importance to every community, particularly in Southern California, where all material prosperity may be said to depend upon it, that the NEWS has had prepared this article in which is given much of the history of our local water system and the present conditions surrounding it, in the belief that the people generally do not realize how much is dependent upon it and are ignorant in regard to it.

Years ago all the water rising in the Verdugo Canyon was naturally regarded as belonging to the Rancho San Rafael, the principality originally of the Verdugo family, reaching from the Arroyo Seco to the boundary line of Rancho Providencia (Burbank) and from the Los Angeles river to the main mountain range back of La Canyada and Crescenta. But along in the latter 60's, after the Civil war, large portions of the ranch passed into the possession of Glassell, Chapman, Beaudry, Thom, Ross, Childs, Dreyfus and others, while the Hunter family had previously acquired large interests in it. This subdivision of the property necessitated something like a permanent division of the canyon streams and so a suit was brought in the Superior Court of the county, known on the records as the case of "A. B. Chapman et al. vs. R. Sepulveda et al." The final decree in the case was rendered in November, 1871, apportioning the water among the various owners of the valley land naturally irrigable from the streams. The justice of this decision considering then existing conditions cannot be questioned. A commission of several members, among them the late B. S. Eaton, who died in Pasadena a few days ago, examined the grounds carefully about the sources of the streams and made their recommendation to the court, which approved it almost without change. The decree gave to the different landowners every one a certain number of ten thousandths of the main canyon stream (that on the west side of the Verdugo Canyon road) with the exception of the Verdugos who were awarded the stream on the east side of the road as far as their necessities for irrigating and domestic use was concerned, the "surplus" to be allowed to pass out of the canyon for the valley owners. This division of the water into ten thousandths is interesting and where the idea of such a basis of division originated is probably known to very few even of those more or less familiar with the question. As a matter of fact there are 10,080 minutes in a week, which was no doubt taken into consideration by the commissioners in making the award, so that every water owner could readily understand that he was entitled once a week to as many minutes run of all of the canyon streams as the number of ten thousandths of the water that he owned. So it remains today that every owner of one ten thousandths part of the water rising on the west side of the canyon, is entitled weekly to one minute's run of the entire stream—and this is the amount of water represented, theoretically, by one share of water stock in the Verdugo Canyon Water company. The "surplus" from the east side stream which also belongs to the valley owners has not for many years been worth figuring on as an asset, although with a friendly arrangement made with the owners of that stream as to development it may sometime be valuable.

The Verdugo Canyon Water Company was organized June 18th, 1884, with A. S. Moore president and J. C. Sherer, secretary. Among the first directors in addition to the above were B. F. Patterson and E. T. Byram, the names of the others not being now readily obtainable. In organizing the company the 10,000 basis was adhered to, the amount of stock being $10,000, divided into ten thousand shares of a par value of one dollar each. The intention of the organizers of the company was that it should be strictly co-operative, no one being allowed to hold more shares of stock than he owned ten thousandths of the water, so that the landowners should remain the owners of the water. As subsequent history proved this is an idea all right in theory, but impracticable under the laws governing corporations, and the Verdugo Canyon Water Company today is no longer a co-operative concern.

As Messrs. Thom and Ross owned approximately one-fourths of the water their interest was sufficiently large to enable them to act independently of the Verdugo Canyon Water Company, and consequently they never became stockholders. The practice in the distribution of the water ever since the company was formed, has been to turn out to these two owners their proportion of the water at the division box (located in Judge Ross's orchard) and to charge them with one-fourth of the expense of caring for and distributing the water. At that point of division also, the water belonging to the North Glendale property owners is turned into the pipe conveying it to them, the balance coming down into the valley and being distributed to the various reservoirs which maintain separate and distinct corporations for the purpose of distribution among the water users who as a general rule are their stockholders. A natural confusion arises in the minds of those who have not been familiar with the management of these various companies, as to what is the character and purpose of each. It may be mentioned in the first place that none of these water companies owned the water they distributed and with the exception of the Verdugo Springs, the Independent and the Consolidated companies do not now it. Their stock, therefore, only represents ownership in the pipe lines and reservoirs of their respective distributing systems. Verdugo Canyon Company stock represents no water, but considerable property in the shape of pipe lines and other items in connection with its purpose, that of a distributor. There is a possibility that a court might hold if called upon for a decision that the company owns water which it has as a company developed in years past by means of a bedrock dam and tunnel, or otherwise. But the water right with the exceptions noted above is vested in the landowners as appurtenant to their realty, except in the cases where it has been transferred from the land to a company or individual by the owners of the land. The Verdugo Springs Water company was the first company formed for the purpose of owning the water that it distributed. This was created by Messrs. Thom, Ross, Byram and one or two others, transferring their individual water rights to the company in consideration of stock. It is still controlled by Messrs. Thom and Ross and the Byram estate and supplies water to that portion of Glendale north of Fifth street, west of the Childs tract line to Glendale avenue.

The Tropico section was the next to break away from the co-operative plan and the majority of landowners there have disposed of their water stock and water rights to the Tropico Reservoir Company, taking stock in return, that company in turn being absorbed by the recently former Consolidated Water Company, composed principally of the Tropico Water Company (1007 shares), H. Glassell, D. Griswold and J. A. Pirtle, representing somewhere about 2000 shares or one-fifth of the water of the canyon and over one-fourth of the stock in the Canyon company. The water owners along Verdugo road and those of North and West Glendale, still as a rule, hold to their original water rights and shares. Outside of these the holder of the largest number of shares in the main company, is L. C. Brand with 455½ shares. The apportionment of water to the acre was originally two or three ten thousandths, in the most cases two and a half. In the Childs tract which comprises all of that part of Glendale from Ninth street to a point north of Oak street above the city limits, on the east side of Glendale avenue to a line passing just west of the Fourth street school house, there were 371 acres entitled to over three ten thousandths to the acre.

Since the organization of the Verdugo Canyon Company, there has been considerable litigation with the Verdugos and later with Judge Ross concerning rights under the decree, principally in regard to rights of development claimed by all interested parties. The decisions as a rule have been favorable to the owners of the valley lands. Since the passing into the hands of the present owners of the Verdugo ranch, conditions have been very much improved. The canyon company has now free access to the lands described in the decree as the "enclosed field," where the water rises, and has done considerable ditching and pipe work resulting in an addition to the supply of water which will from this time forward be protected no doubt from all sorts of contamination as well as possible, although should there be the development in the Verdugo canyon tract above the park which the owners anticipate, the problem of keeping the stream protected from pollution promises to be a difficult one. The present board of directors of the Verdugo Canyon Water Company are the following: Hugh Glassell, D. Griswold, T. W. Doyle, W. S. Sanders, H. Davenport, G. B. Woodberry and E. W. Richardson.

The same directors have held office for three years past, the annual call for a stockholders' meeting failing to bring out a quorum. Many efforts have been made in times past to consolidate the various companies under one control, but the water rights are in the possession of so many individuals and so many conflicting interests are represented among the stockholders that a genuine consolidation seems remote.

THE IMPERIAL COUNTRY.

Mr. D. H. Imler, of Tropico, called at the NEWS office Wednesday last. He is now playing the part of an honest rancher in Imperial Valley, being the owner with Mr. J. W. Imler of a tract of 640 acres in that wonderful region. He states that there is a probability of cotton being raised on a very large scale there as the experiments of the past season have proved that it does well, one and a half bales being the yield per acre with the probability that with an increased knowledge of the business a yield of two bales to the acre can be attained which will mean a net result to the grower of about seventy-five dollars per acre. Persons who contemplate going into that country with the idea that good government land can be readily obtained are cautioned to revise their ideas. Everything of value is taken up from Salton sea to the mountains. Relinquishments can be purchased, but great caution should be exercised in doing that, as there exist all sorts of chances of buying into a lawsuit.

Our old fellow-townsman, Thomas Hezmalhalch, dropped in at the NEWS office one day this week. His home address is now Johannesburg, South Africa. Business called him to Chicago and from there he came to California to see his children whom he had been visiting at Fullerton and in Glendale. He reports having left Mrs. Hezmalhalch in good health in Africa and expects soon to return there.

Glendale people who had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Eugene Nowland at the Country Club here or in Los Angeles either in concert or in the "Violin Maker of Cremona," will be interested in knowing that he has made a great success in "the musical and dramatic field."

The sketch in which he has recently been appearing in Baltimore and other Eastern cities, is entitled "Traumerei." "Musical America" says:

"If anything is needed as a climax to Mr. Nowland's powers as an emotional actor it is his violin playing with which he brings about the climax of the play."

He is said to be contemplating a European tour.

PARENT-TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Fourth street school organization met at the school house Wednesday afternoon last with a fair attendance of mothers present. The meeting was preceded by some class singing which was creditable to both teachers and pupils. At 2:30 Mrs. Ryan turned the meeting over to Mrs. R. A. Blackburn, the president of the local association, and after the transaction of routine business Mrs. Chalmers Smith, president of the Mothers' Congress, was introduced. Mrs. Smith spoke entertainingly for an hour upon the work done by the federated organizations in Los Angeles. As one of the things rendered possible by the federated ladies she spoke of their getting together in Los Angeles immediately after hearing of the San Francisco earthquake and within 24 hours having sent aid to that stricken city 30,000 boxes of luncheon. She told of the day nursery work and of the help given to the "little mothers"—the girls from 13 to 18, who have to take to school with them the baby brothers and sisters of the family. The most encouraging feature of the work is the fact that those who are helped are as a rule thoroughly appreciative and willing to do what they can in return.

Upon the conclusion of Mrs. Smith's talk the president brought a few other matters of interest before the meeting. It was decided to attempt to form a local federation consisting of the Fourth street, Sixth street and West Glendale schools. On account of the school vacation, there will be no regular meeting held on the last Friday in December, but there may be a called meeting before that time.

HOODOOISM REVEALED.

Mr. and Mrs. Houle and Mr. and Mrs. Dow of Fifth street were on Saturday night initiated into the deepest mysteries of Hoodooism at the housewarming given Saturday night to the Hoodoos when they were uproariously and otherwise entertained by Mr. and Mrs. John Hunchberger in their swell new bungalow, corner of Fourth and Central. It's quite safe to say that the initiates like the "Ruggles in the Rear," will never forget it. Prof. A. W. Tower acted as exalted master of ceremonies. The figure 13, bats and black cats, a tub of cold water and a cauldron of hot weinerwurst were only a few of the things employed. The real secret work is only spoken of in whispers,—by Hoodoos only. It is likely, however, that the next initiation can be arranged to take place outside the city limits, as peace (a very large piece usually) is one of the things promised by the conclave.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Was generally observed in this vicinity. At the Christian church in the evening the churches in the Ministers' club assembled in union service to hear a sermon by Dr. S. Lawrence Ward of the Presbyterian church, other pastors assisting. The stores all report a good business preceding the day, indicating prosperity among the people. There was a chicken shooting match on the grounds opposite the Ross packing house and one or two ball games among home players. The weather was ideal and the owners of automobiles took advantage of the day to try how near they could come to the speed limit without breaking anything.

AT THE COUNTRY CLUB.

The maids and matrons are making elaborate preparations for a children's party to be given in the afternoon of the Monday before Christmas. There will be a Christmas tree, games and supper.

The Presbyterians will unite with us in this service.

The Sunday School has outgrown the church accommodations. Last Sunday morning the pastor raised several hundred dollars in order to erect a temporary structure, 24x36 feet. The men of the church had a "bee" on Thanksgiving Day and did much in building the structure.

Every department of the church seems to be very active and in good working order.

There will be no study class Wednesday night, on account of the Ladies' Aid Bazar.

Last Sunday the pastor requested someone to make a gift of carpet to the church. The first of the week a member of the church handed the pastor a check.

We invite you to worship with us and will give you a friendly welcome. Newcomers are especially invited.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

A most enjoyable afternoon was spent on Tuesday of this week with the civics committee in charge. After a short business session the meeting was turned over to Miss Ruth Byram, the chairman of the civics committee.

Miss Byram first spoke of the second day this year to be devoted to the civics work. Early in April there will be an exhibition known as the Glendale chamber of commerce. At this any store or individual may make an exhibit, each booth and exhibit carrying out a certain plan and color scheme, as mapped out by the chief designer. The exhibit will be open two evenings, but not in the day time. We trust every one will keep this in mind and plan in every way possible to help make this a success.

While in San Francisco this fall attending the Grand Chapter O. E. S., Mrs. Imler and Miss Hickman attended the reception given by federated clubs to all visiting club ladies. This afternoon Miss Hichman brought greetings from the club ladies of San Francisco to our club.

Mrs. Tower then gave a full report of the district convention held in Pasadena last week.

Mr. Anderson favored us with two piano solos. His rendition of the first one, entirely with the left hand, was most excellent, indeed, and showed him to be an accomplished musician. Mr. Anderson favored us again later in the afternoon with another solo. All were very much appreciated.

Miss Hickman then read an original story. This story portrayed Glendale as it is possible for it to be, with its beautifully kept streets and buildings, its magnificent palms and everything of the city beautiful, brought about in a large measure by the civics department of the woman's clubs.

We were next favored by two vocal solos by Mrs. Fraley. Those who have heard Mrs. Fraley before know that the songs were a delight to all.

On account of the illness of Mrs. Newcomb we missed the poem she had written commemorating this our first birthday since incorporation.

After the adjournment of the meeting a pleasant social hour was enjoyed by all. Dainty refreshments of sandwiches, cakes and tea were served. Even the birthday cake with its one lone candle was in evidence and the cake was as good as it looked, which was fine. Thus ended a pleasant day.

GLENDALE, CAL., NOVEMBER 27, 1909

It is said that there are over 300,000 paupers in Great Britain over 70 years of age. These statistics prove that it is one of the healthiest of professions. No wonder the British taxpayer groans.

We rejoice to see that Mr. Carnegie has money to devote to other philanthropical purposes aside from donating it to libraries. He has given a million dollars for the purpose of fighting pellagra. We should like to see him or some other millionaire endow a few free hospitals in Los Angeles and break up the doctors' monopoly which is coining fortunes out of the misfortunes of their fellow men.

William Watson, the English poet, wrote some verses which Richard Le Gallian took umbrage at and indited some other and worse verses in reply. Now Watson is coming across the ocean to meet Le Gallien face to face. The cablegrams exchanges between the two alleged poets sound quite sanguinary, but we see no other signs of blood upon the moon and it is not going to be necessary to turn the hose on them.

Judge Willis in Los Angeles has decided that the driver of an automobile or of any other vehicle at a rate faster than the legal limit, must be held responsible for any injury wrought by his vehicle, regardless of intent. Presumably this is good law and undoubtedly it is good common sense. When a man is run down by either an auto, a whiz-wheel or even a mule team, he gets but little comfort from the assurance that it was not intentional.

Judge Conrey's decision in the case of Mushet vs. Smith, in which the former asked for a recount of ballots cast out of the primary election of Nov. 10th, appears to be justified by a natural construction of the laws that apply; he holding that the general election law relating to election contests, does not include a primary election and that the city charter does not provide for such contest. As it stands now, it would seem only necessary to stuff the ballot box at a primary election or make a miscount of the ballots in order to defeat an opposing candidate.

Messrs. Grace and Cannon, the Americans put to death in Nicaraugua by order of President Zelaya, do not seem to be very worthy objects of sympathy. They were prepared to use dynamite in the hope of sending into eternity some 500 men on a government transport. War at best is a horrible business, and when American citizens go into a foreign country to commit wholesale murder in a cause in which they have no interest except to gain pecuniary reward or to satisfy their unwholesome love of adventure, they should not expect much sympathy from their countrymen.

Politicians are already talking about th next state election and candidates are being "mentioned."

Chas. F. Curry, present secretary of state, will, no doubt, come before the convention as he has been training for it a long time. He is first, last and all the time a politician and should have no particular strength outside of the machine organization which we believe will get back of him unless it is reckless enough to back Gillette. The one name so far mentioned that appeals favorably to us as a strong and worthy candidate, assuming that he must come from the North, is that of State Senator Charles M. Belshaw of Contra Costa.

THE TRAGEDY OF THE COAL MINES.

The mine disaster at Cherry, Ill., was one of the most terrible on record and does not seem to have been one that could have been foreseen and prevented, a reflection which has in it cause for both satisfaction and discouragement. It is satisfactory in that no one can justly be held responsible for it and is discouraging because it emphasizes the fact that with all possible care and with the assistance of all the twentieth century devices for safety, the human being who works in a coal mine does well to be always prepared for sudden death.

Like all great tragedies, it gave evidence of the fact that there are always heroes in the world, occupying perhaps, humble places in the great world of which they are apparently an insignificant part, yet blossoming forth under the forcing of circumstances into the flower of perfect beauty which springs from the soul of unselfishness. "Greater love than this can no man have, that he will lay down his life for another."

Colliers' Weekly has our friend, Oscar Lawler, down pretty fine. He recently declared that he never received any particular favors from the Southern Pacific Railway company, or words to that effect. In the sense that he was under no obligations to that corporation as he had always given value for favors received, the statement is probably correct from Oscar's standpoint. He packed a convention and helped to manipulate a legislature to secure the election of his friend Frank Flint to the United States senate, being a good second to Walter Parker upon that occasion. Senator Flint publicly acknowledged his debt to Parker and Lawler received his reward by appointment as U. S. attorney. A record of this kind means a power behind the scenes and does not indicate by any means the reward of virtue. And in California everybody knows that the power behind Parker and Flint is the Southern Pacific Railroad company, working at present and for years past through the Republican organization, but ready to get behind any organization that it can use for its purpose. Mr. Lawler seems to be doing good service, however, in the position he has achieved, what will happen when he strikes a railroad current remains to be seen.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

The feast has been spread and the bountiful board bereft of its beauty shows forth the day after as a mere reminder of home gathering and hospitality. The sermons have been preached and we have been reminded not in vain, let us hope, that the bountiful harvests and the overflowing granneries are not the result alone of our industry and foresight, but that a Beneficence superior to the best that is in us, although akin to it, has given the sunshine and the rain in due season and withheld the blight. We lose the beneficent lesson of the day if we rise from the table of feasting with any spirit of boastful pride for the things accomplished during the year. There have been wonderful accomplishments in the field of human endeavor, but the combined wisdom of the race will not enable us to say which of them is the most worthy and will accomplish the most for the betterment of humanity. It may be that some seemingly insignificant achievement of which we have not heard, may have in it the germ that shall revolutionize the world and make the discoveries of science in the world below and the air above, seem of very little moment.

For the world in which we struggle,
With a feverish haste to rise,
Moves in darkness, for its wise men
Are but children in disguise!

WILLIAM MURPHY'S GOOD WORK.

William Murphy is a "chip of the old block" and is doing excellent reform work in Los Angeles. He went down to Los Angeles street the other night, where the toughest element in the city is found, and gave them a wholesome talk straight from the shoulder. The hoodlum element, always present in that neighborhood, did not like his style and tried to break up the meeting. Mr. Murphy told them some wholesome truths about the labor problem and commended the "open shop," an unpopular thing to do in that neighborhood. There is a good deal of talk among a certain class of people about the sacredness of "free speech," but it is notable that it is a one-sided freedom that they want. They want freedom to denounce the capitalists, the churches and the employers of labor, and it is talk of this description that the street crowds are most accustomed to hear. Men with the courage and ability of William Murphy can do a world of good by giving to these people something else to think of than the sinfulness of others, by preaching the gospel to them in a way that they can understand and by seeking to impress them with the idea of personal responsibility. It does the drunkard no good to listen to the abuse of the saloonkeeper; what he needs is to have aroused in him the dormant spirit of manhood; the belief in a Higher Power and the infinite possibilities of his being. Listening to the the anarchistic talk that can be heard on Los Angeles street any night and frequently during the day, one cannot but wonder that it does not drive to crime more men and women than it does. The effect can only be bad and it would be better for society if these harangues could be met more frequently with such an antidote as William Murphy is capable of administering.

THE SATURDAY HALF HOLIDAY.

If everybody could afford to leave business and stop work at 12 o'clock noon on Saturdays, the half holiday would of course please everybody. Unfortunately or otherwise, however, a good many of the human kind imagine that they do not need a half holiday in order to be prepared for a whole one, and so keep on digging all through the beautiful Saturday afternoon. And so it happens that to a real majority of the people (and there is a legend to the effect that this is a government by the majority) the Saturday half holiday, particularly as regards public offices, is an unmitigated nuisance. The legislature of California a few years ago passed a law making Saturday afternoon a half holiday in all public offices. It was and is a very popular measure with the "boys" who fill the offices and do politics for the legislators. But for the taxpayers and others who have an old fashion of going to town on Saturday to attend to any odds and ends of business they may have there, it is a thing prolific of unparliamentary language which still fails to do the subject justice. This is the taxpaying season and every Saturday the belated taxpayer rushes up to the tax office at one minute past twelve or thereabouts and finds that his "servants" have closed the door in his face, and he cannot even get rid of his money, but must keep it over Sunday and run the chances of some of it escaping into the contribution box. There was a case pending in Judge Conrey's court last Saturday of great importance to the city. It was the primary election contest and it was imperative that it be decided at the earliest possible moment. At noon, the judge was about ready to render his decision, but the "inexorable hand of time" (see "Black Crook" for exact quotation) pointed to the hour of twelve and there was nothing doing.

Once on a recent Saturday the country printer went to Los Angeles to transact some of the important business of his calling. His alleged mind was engrossed too much with the subject of his next week's leader or something else, so that he did not realize the swift passage of the hours. He had a bill to collect of the county (3 inches of printing at 16 cents) and hurried toward the court house, but just as he reached the tunnel's mouth he met the outcoming toilers from that hive of industry, and realized that the 48 cents was not attainable until Monday. Then he bethought him of a check for $1.50 for a year's subscription, drawn on a near-by bank, where his face was known. He rushed there at once, just in time to see the porter close the outer doors. He had another errand at a printing establishment some blocks away, but the fever of his haste had abated and when he met a friend a few minutes later some time was consumed in discussing the weather and politics. Stopping once or twice more in the enjoyment of enforced leisure, for there was, he thought, no occasion now for hurrying, he reached the establishment he sought and was greeted by a sign on the door, "We close at 1 p. m. Saturday." This was pretty near the limit so he gave up all idea of doing any more business that week and started to catch a car for home. The thought arrested him, however, that he had not lunched, and to himself he said, "I'll go to that nice little Cafateria up the street where I can get two bits worth for a quarter." Hope revived and thinking the day not yet lost he moved cheerfully forward. Yes, there was the tempting display of familiar looking edibles in the window and he paused a moment to frame up his order. This done, he approached the doorway and was horror stricken when his eyes were greeted with the sign, "Seventh Day Adventist Cafateria—closed Saturdays."

They would have sent him to the asylum that afternoon had it not been that the courts were closed.

PRETTILY CELEBRATED.

....To honor the birthday of her daughter, Miss Olive, Mrs. B. S. Quick of Cedar street entertained on Saturday evening the members of the young honore's Sunday school class and their teacher, Mrs. J. C. Danford, whose birthday also fell upon that date. The home was resplendent in holly, of which a wagonload was used, and grapevines of autumnal colorings. The dining room was festooned with ropes of smilax and scarlet satin ribbons and a canopy of peppers from which depened a basket of holly berries. Beneath it a bowl of American Beauty roses reflected their loveliness in the mirror that graced the table center. Place cards were tied iwth red satin bows and holly. A very original musical contest and some games made up for the occasion, were greatly enjoyed. Miss Clarissa Haines won the handsome prize offered. At ten o'clock the beauties of the dining room, heretofore hidden, were disclosed, and Mrs. Danford inaugurated that part of the festivities by presiding over a wonderful chafing dish. The many gifts carried the love thoughts of the givers and all voted the birthday of Miss Olive and Mrs. Danford a most happy affair.

THE WEATHER.

Cloudiness prevailed all day Thursday and about dusk rain began to fall, continuing during the night. Precipitation, according to Mr. H. E. Bartlett's gauge, was .74 of an inch.

AT THE HIGH SCHOOL.

There have been a few withdrawals of students from the school and others have gone home for Thanksgiving. Among those who have withdrawn are Nelson Frazar, who leaves to take a position with the Pacific Electric in the depot in Glendale, and George Thurman, who has gone with his parents to Portland, Ore. Elmer Courtney has gone to Monterey. Miss Thatcher of Oxnard entered last week. The first quarters card issued to the students last week show satisfactory progress along all the lines of school work. During the damp weather of week before last, the discomforts of school work in the chilly atmosphere of the big building became too much to bear and several classes were dismissed in consequence. One of the first acts of the city trustees upon taking over the lighting plant was to run temporary connections so that the fans which control the distribution of heat through the building could be set in motion and in a short time afterward the heating apparatus knocked off the chill from the atmosphere.

The athletic events open up auspiciously for Glendale. The basket ball game with the Los Angeles High which Glendale girls won was a good starter, and was followed by their victory over Whittier. They the boys accumulated glory by winning from Polytechnic by 45-22. The boys' second team broke even with Burbank—one game each. The league games will begin Dec. 4th, when Fernando plays Glendale on the latter's grounds. On the 20th Glendale played Whittier at the latter's court, winning by a score of 27-21. The return game will be played here in January.

The rhetoricals continue to be of unusual interest and are resulting in considerable development of talent along various lines. Recent features among others were "A Letter from an Actor," by Myrtle Pulliam; a vocal solo by Abbie Ward; a solo by Harry Beardsley; songs by Boys Glee club and a selection from Browning by Anna Woodberry. The seniors English class has taken up the study of parliamentary rules in earnest; every member of the class takes turns in presiding at its sessions.

The members of the U. S. history and German class went with Mr. Howe to San Pedro Friday of last week and had a very enjoyable time visiting the German warship anchored there. The party given by the faculty Tuesday evening was given in the early part of the week contrary to custom on account of Thanksgiving making the latter evenings of the week unavailable. It was a tremendous success. The imitation of Sousa's band was an immense hit. The potato race was won by the seniors and the prize for Charades went to the sophomores. The concert given on Wednesday afternoon is alluded to elsewhere. It is the intention to give one or more complimentary recitals to the patrons of the school in the near future. In music the constant effort is being made to lay stress upon the best type of music, particularly in giving selections from composers who are followed in the regular course of study. Several of Schubert's selections are now receiving attention.

The Stylus, of which there are to be four numbers this term, is out and is receiving many compliments both on contents and appearance.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON CONCERT.

Mr. E. H. Buck, the genial head salesman of the Wiley B. Allen Co., furnished the Glendale high school with a very interesting and instructive Victor concert, on Wednesday. Mr. H. H. Clubb, the manager of the Victor department for the same company, who is probably the best authority for the construction of the Victor here on the coast, gave a lecture with the musical numbers of which was highly appreciated by all present. Violin obligatos with the Victor more than pleased the audience.

MRS. HURTT AND MRS. BUNDY ENTERTAIN.

Mrs. Leon H. Hurtt and Mrs. Bundy entertained on Thanksgiving day with an elaborately appointed dinner. Table and dining room were beautifully decorated with asparagus plumosos and autumn leaves. The table center piece was a large pumpkin filled with fruits. Place cards were delicately hand-painted in water colors. Covers were laid for six guests.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE DAY.

Chapter L, P. E. O., enjoyed a practical demonstration on Monday afternoon at the Bungle-O, Cedar street, of how certain good things to eat should be made and served. Members arrived laden with their generous contributions to the feast and favorite receipts were freely discussed and demonstrated from the raw materials. There was also a short business session.

A HOME BUILDER AND OTHERS.

Mr. O. W. Odell, who had the courage of his convictions and invested something like $25,000 in Glendale, building a half dozen houses on North Louise street, informs us that he has found purchasers for all of them. All encouragement should be given to men like Mr. Odell, who build houses ready for homeseekers. There is a good chance for some one with the money to invest, to go Mr. Odell just one better, and that is to build the houses and also furnish them. There is a growing and constant demand for furnished houses, as any of our real estate men will testify. The strangers who desire to stop in our community if only for a few days, should be encouraged in every way possible. We are just egotistical enough to believe that we improve upon acquaintance and the stranger within our gates is destined to belong to us permanently. If we con only lure him within our reach long enough to innoculate him with the fever of possession—and it does not take long either. Get busy, capitalists, and prepare to absorb him.

HOW THE SUN ROSE.

(For the NEWS)

I watched this morn from early dawn
To see the day god rise.
A faint flush came like palid flame
Up o'er the Eastern skies.

Then ribbons laid their roseate shade,
Across the tinted dawn,
And wondrous grew their glowing hue
Gay banners of the morn.

Low in the west shone amethyst
On clouds of opal shades.
No fairer glow than morn can show
Is seen when daylight fades.

Through fleeting haze flashed shining rays,
Bright jewels of the sun.
And then uprolled a rim of gold—
A new day had begun.

A kiss was laid on tall tree shade,
And birds began to sing;
Then smiles quick fell o'er hill and dell,
Like swallows on the wing.

Never in the history of this place has there been more call for houses to rent than there is at the present time. The local real estate agents tell us that they have inquiries every day for homes which they are unable to accommodate. The building of a number of cottages here to rent would be a good venture at this time.

Considerable improvement work is being done at the junction of Central avenue and San Fernando road this week. This work includes the installing of a four-foot redwood culvert the entire width of the road under the street. This culvert is being installed at this time so as to prepare for the flood-water which comes down to this point during the winter. Under the personal supervision of Road Overseer Light, this section will not be at all damaged, as in previous years. This is only one of the many very valuable improvements Mr. Light is making upon the roads in this section.

SOME WEDDING BELLS FOR THEM.

Miss Laura Bartlett Shea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Shea of Brand Boulevard, and C. Shoemaker, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of this place.

Although it was generally known that this young couple were going to be married, it was ont supposed that the event would happen until the latter part of December. The affair was very quiet, only the families of the two parties being present.

Miss Shea is very popular here. She is a member of the Tropico Presbyterian Church, which she has attended since arriving in this town several years ago. Mr. Bennett is also favorably known. He is a graduate of the LaMoure, N. D., high school, from which he was sent to the naval academy at Annapolis. He attended that school for one year. He is now employed by the H. Jevne Co. in Los Angeles.

After the ceremony the young couple left for Los Angeles, where they will soon be at home to their many friends at 516 East Thirty-first street, of that city.

The affair was very quiet, only the immediate friends of the family being present. The little home was prettily arrayed with an abundance of seasonable flowers, and the tables for the luncheon, which was served immediately after the ceremony, was decorated very prettily with sweet violets. Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left Tropico to be away a short time, after which they will return to this place and occupy a pretty little home on Palmer avenue almost opposite the home of the bride's mother.

The Number 4.

There are four cardinal points, four winds, four quarters of the moon, four seasons, four rules of arithmetic, four suits of cards, four quarters to the hour, four legs for furniture, most animals go on four legs, the dead are placed between four planks, the prisoners between four walls. We have four incisor and four canine teeth, and our forks have four prongs. All animals when butchered are cut into four quarters. The violin, greatest of all string instruments, has but four strings. Four of a kind is a pretty good hand at poker, even if they are only fours.—Exchange.

Dressed For the Part.

"What subject have you taken for your address at the Civic club?"

"Woman's moral obligations as a citizen."

"What a lovely subject! And what are you going to wear?"

"That new gown I brought home with me from Paris. And just think! I had it so cleverly packed in with my old clothes that the customs house inspector never discovered it was there."—Baltimore American.

An Explanation.

"How in blazes did the compositor happen to head my foreign travel letter with the words 'Foreign Drivel?'"

"I don't know. Perhaps he read it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Vacation by Think.

Make a compact with your soul to take a vacation and the way is simple. There are portions of your time over which you have control. Probably your evenings and your Sundays are your own. Set apart a month or so. Eliminate the self assigned tasks for those hours out of business and give yourself up to the pursuit of pleasure. Get others to join you. Call a vacation club. Adopt a real vacation spirit and go in for a good time. Resolve never to speak of work out of business hours, but to fill to the full that time which is your own with recreations which most appeal to you. Did you ever sing? Sing now. Did you ever paint? Paint now. Remember nature's gifts to you and find occasion to praise nature within as well as without.—Exchange.

He Got It Wrong.

A lady while going downstairs to dinner had the misfortune to step slightly on the dress of a lady in front of her. The man on whose arm the former was leaning said aloud, rudely, so that the couple in front might hear:

"Always getting in the way, like Balaam's ass."

Upon which the lady whose gown had been trodden on, turning round, replied with a sweet smile:

"Pardon me! It was the angel who stood in the way and the ass which spoke."—Tit-Bits.
